[L.S.] HUGH MCCULLOCK,

Comptroller of the Currency. MPORTANT TO FEMALES—DR. CHEES—MAN'S PILLS—The combination of ingredients in these Pills is the result of a long and extensive practice. They are mild in their operation, and certain in correcting all irregularities, painful menstruations, removing all obstructions, painful menstruations, removing all obstructions, whether from cold or other causes, headache, pain in the side, paipitation of the heart, whites, all nervous affections, hysterics, fatigue, pain in the back and limbs, &c., disturbed sleep, which arise from interruption of nature. Dr. Cheeseman's Pills was the commencement of a new era in the treatment of these irregularities and obstructions, which have consigned so many to a premeture. which have consigned so many to a premature grave. No female can enjoy good health unless she is regular, and whenever an obstruction takes place the general health begins to decline. Dr. Cheese nan's Pills are the most effectual remedy ever known for all complaints peculiar to females. To all classes they are invaluable, inducing, with certainty, periodical regularity. They are known to thousands who have used them at different pe-riods throughout the country, having the sanction of some of the most eminent physicians in America. of Musketry Heard in the Streets-Our Troops Well Concentrated-All Are Anxious for the Attack-The Victory at Franklin Complete—Great Loss of the Enemy—Heavy Casualties of Their Of-ficers—Further Particulars of the Fight. LOUISVILLE, Dec. 2.—This morning's Joural says that Thomas has abandoned his strong position at Franklin, and formed in line of battle within three miles of Nashville. Yesterday evening the two hostile armies were engaged in skirmishing, and the rattle of musketry could be plainly heard in the streets of Nashville. A desperate battle is imminent, but we do not believe Gen. Thomas has any tears for the result. He is not as weak as he would make the rebels believe, and can offer battle to a better advantage to himself in front of Nashville than at any other point.

His left wing rests on Murfreesboro, and when strengthened by forces at Chattanooga, it will be strong enough to close upon Hood's rear and cut off his retreat.

The Great Victory. N ASHVILLE, Dec. 2.-Additional reports received increase the magnitude of the late victory at Franklin. Thirty stand of colors were captured by the Union forces.

Gen. Stanley commanding the 4th corps, had a very narrow escape, having his horse killed under him, and was shot in the right shoulder, the ball traversing the back and going out of the left should er. He is in the city, and, though suffering considerable, is still attending to duty. It is confirmed that Gen. Pat. Cleburne of Tennessee, is killed. Gen. Kimball, commanding the 2d division of Stanley's corps, in the heat of battle passed a rebel major general, who told him he was mortally wounded. His men succeeded in carrying off his body.

It is believed that Hood's main army is threatening Murfreesboro.

After three days' skirmishing, the enemy crowded our first line of works yesterday afternoon, and at four p. m. made a most desperate attack on our right and centre, forc-ng our lines to our breastworks: which thrown up from river to river in an open field on the Cumberland pike, which ran through the centre of the field. At least half the rebel force engaged endeavored to pierce our centre, and came down viciously on Wagner's division, which after desperate fighting, fell back, and Many's rebel division, of Frank Cheatham's corps, got inside our works and captured two guns. Our centre was not broken, however, and, better still, General Wagner successfully rallied his troops, who charged on the enemy, recaptured the two guns, and drove the division over the breastworks, capturing one entire brigade and its commander. At 4.30 o'clock the battle was waged with unabating vigor, the enemy having made during a half hour several attempts to break our centre.

The Federal position was a magnificent one. and the result of these four day's work was magnificently grand.

All this while the rebels had appeared in front of our right. The plan was to pierce our centre and crush our right wing before dark. A portion of our infantry were engaged threequarters of an hour firing on the rebel column, who stood their ground like madmen. During every charge made on our right and centre, volleys of grape and canister were hurled into their lines, and only darkness prevented their sacrifice being more awful. It is said that no canister shot was used by the rebels during the day, but fired shot and shell. After the first break of Wagner's division and its recovery, our line never budged a step All was quiet after 10 p. m. It was not only one of the prettiest but cleanest battles of the war. The excessive slaughter of the enemy was owing to our wholesale use of canister and grape, and our selection of the ground. The battle was fought in an open field, with no trees or under-growth or other interruption. The enemy's loss in killed and wounded approximates 7,000, and we have over 1,200 prisoners, and one general officer and several field officers. The colonel of the 15th Mississippi, a northern man, of Illinois, was wounded and taken prisoner. Four-fitths of his regiment was killed, woundea, and captured. Our loss does not reach a thousand, hors du combat. General Bradly, of Illinois, while gallantly leading his troops, was severely wounded in the shoulder. Our loss in field officers is very small. Our troops behaved handsomely. Schofield commanded on the field, Stanley on the right, and Cox on the left. General Stanley was wounded slightly in the neck, but remained on the field, and is General Thomas would electrify you, and this is but the epilogue of the battle to come After our dead, wounded, and prisoners were cared for, our army fell back to this point, and are in line of battle while I write. Up to this time, three p. m., the enemy has not made his appearance. The 3d corps of veterans are in readiness, and a battle is expected be-fore to-morrow. eral Donaldson down to the unscientific laborer. The falling back of our troops was accomplished at 8 o'clock this morning, and bridges burned across Harpeth river to retard the transportation of rebel supplies. The cavalry was handled prettily by General Wilson, be-tween Spring Hill and Triune.

A. J. Smith's corps is in line of battle, and the situation is particularly grand. Forts Negley, Morton, Cairo, and Houston, are alive, and the infantry movementy perfectly satisfactory. Something must immediately transpire, as General Thomas is ready to strike, no matter how the rebels move.

Governor Vance, of North Carolina, in his message, makes the following remarkable ad-"The western border of the State is subject to raids and depredations from bands of lawless men, who swarm in the mountain frontier, and murder, burn and destroy with savage cruelty. Some of the interior counties, also, are infested by deserters representing nearly every State in the Confederacy, who lurk in the swamps and mountains, stealing, plundering, and in many instances murdering the inhabitants. In some places they muster in such force as almost to amount to a suspension of the civil authority, aided and protected, as they are, by their relatives and friends.

Muller-I am innocent.

Dr. Cappel—You are innocent!

Muller—God knows what I have done.

Dr. Cappel—God knows what you have done. Does he know also that you have committed this crime?

Dr. Cappel writes to a London paper the following account of Muller's last moments: "Soon after entering his cell on the last morning I asked Muller again whether he was guilty of this murder. He denied it. I then said, 'Muller, the moments are precious; we must turn our minds wholly to God; I shall question you no more about this, but my last words to you will be, 'Are you innocent?' He remained silent for a minute or two, but presently exclaimed, his eyes full of tears, and clasping his arms round my neck, Do not forsake me; stay with me to the last.' I was so struck with this that I consulted with Mr. Jonas, the governor, whether the final quesis that murder was not premeditated; but that Muller, in want of morey, and yielding to a sudden temptation, attacked his victim for the sake of robbery, and finished, in the despair of the mement, by killing him either with his own hands or causing his fall from the railway carriage. He stated all recent events had at times appeared to him like a vision or a dream, adding that he had passed in solitude through many terrible hours since his arrest in America. "I generally observed that Muller was most earnest in protesting his innocence when directly charged with murder. Statements such as never having been in a North London railway train he made only in answer to pointed questions, and, it seems, in order not to contradict previous similar assertions. His manner—simple, gentle, and apparently open and truthful—was such as easily to deceive even experienced observers, and the wonderful self-possession of this most remarkable character was never more strikingly manifested than by his fencing with words, the rope round his neck and the white cap over his face, when about to confess his guilt at the very last moment.
